Red Buttons

as we see it

In various cities throughout the country, TV GUIDE editors are asking the more than two million families who buy our magazine each week to help select local television performers "worthy of network attention." At first glance this may appear to be a strange sort of poll. It is, but then television is a strange medium.

TV uses up material and performers so rapidly that some source of supply for new faces is an absolute necessity. Vaudeville is dead. Burlesque is all but gone. The networks, then, must look to night clubs, radio and local television for fresh personalities.

Our feeling is that there is a great deal of talent on local stations just waiting to be discovered. You are the talent scouts. We will give your choices national publicity in an article that will include their pictures and a description of their capabilities.

If this small effort makes it possible for just one new star or show to be born, you and we will be more than compensated.

One more announcement. Before the end of the current television season, we hope to name TV GUIDE's "Show of the Year." Our editors will make the selection, but we will be guided by your suggestions. We want to pick the regular program that not only has offered outstanding entertainment or information, but has made the most notable contribution to the cause dearest to our hearts—better television programming.

We would appreciate your counsel. Please send us the name of the program you would pick, and the reasons for your choice. The address is As We See It, TV GUIDE, 400 N. Broad St., Philadelphia 1, Pa.

TV Teletype*

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

LUCILLE BALL and DESI ARNAZ due in New York the end of this month for the Broadway premiere of their new movie, "The Long, Long Trailer." While in New York, LUCY will be feted at a special luncheon of the Circus Saints and Sinners, a show business organization, and becomes the first woman to be so honored . . . KATHY GODFREY's personal secretary, PHYLLIS BENSON, held the same job at one time for KATHY's brother, ARTHUR.

CHARLIE APPLEWHITE, MILTON BERLE's new singing protege, under consideration for his own 15-minute show. It's further proof, if any were needed, of TV's ability to create stars . . . TED MACK and his Original Amateur Hour planning a special show April 10 to celebrate "1001 Amateur Nights." Now seen on 103 stations, the program will have 119 outlets by that time.

Meet Millie, the show that was brought back to TV by viewer demand, gets its first sponsor in April. At that time, it will move from Saturday nights to Tuesdays at 9 . . . CBS has not decided what show will replace Millie on Saturdays . . . Because of GERTRUDE BERG's recent illness, her appearance in "Morning Star" on U.S. Steel Hour has been postponed to March 2.

Comedian AL BERNIE signed for a once-weekly stint on the KATE SMITH show. BERNIE made his radio debut on KATE's show in 1948 . . . JAMES McCLAIN, who has taken over as Dr. I.Q., held the same job on radio for six years. He quit show business in 1946 to become a minister . . . Comedian JERRY LESTER is co-producing and starring in a new series of five-minute telefilms.

PATTI PAGE guests on EDDIE FISHER's program Feb. 19, which originates that night in Washington. After the show, EDDIE's sponsor is holding a reception in honor of PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, at which PATTI and EDDIE will entertain . . . SENOR WENCES, the ventriloquist, guests on ED SULLIVAN's Toast of the Town Feb. 21.

T-Men in Action moves from NBC to ABC late in April, switching from live to film. Borden's, which had been sponsoring T-Men on NBC, is retaining Thursday night time slot and is seeking a crime documentary, a la Dragnet, as replacement. One such show under consideration is WARDEN LEWIS E. LAWES' 20,000 Years in Sing Sing.

NBC's much-heralded Home Show finally kicks off March 1, going Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to noon. Network set designers have cooked up a permanent set for the show costing $200,000.

HOLLYWOOD

Dan Jenkins reports:

Boomtown is booming again. CBS is reportedly digging into its treasury for $3,000,000 with which to build at least two new studios at Television City, plus the conversion of one of the present studios to color. ABC is getting ready to switch a number of its New York shows to Hollywood and has formed a new corporation with Hal Roach, Jr., to produce TV film series for syndication.

JACKIE GLEASON has about made up his mind to do his show from here next season, and MILTON BERLE is toying seriously with the idea of doing the same thing. Even one of the local independent stations, Paramount's KTLA, has bought the old Warner lot on Sunset Blvd., and is planning to film and syndicate a couple of its shows.

That March 21 JACK BENNY show, recently filmed by GEORGE BURNS' film unit, includes BOB HOPE in addition to BENNY, BURNS and BING CROSBY. About the only way CBS could top itself after that one would be to get PRESIDENT EISENHOWER to demonstrate his painting technique on Omnibus . . . An upcoming episode of My Little Margie is laid in Palm Springs, where CHARLIE FARRELL is the Number One citizen and former mayor. So while FARRELL plays GALE STORM's father, an actor had to be hired to play FARRELL.

CBS-TV making contractual noises at SHEREE NORTH, the girl who danced ("danced?") on that initial BING CROSBY show . . . It's now official by the LORETTA YOUNG show that those lengthy introductions are being cut down to get on with the story . . . Add DR. KINSEY to the growing list of This Is Your Life prospects who have had to be cancelled . . . QUENTIN REYNOLDS will make a series of 13 films called Classified . . . Look for DICK POWELL to make a regular series out of his WILLIE DANTE characterization done on several Four Star Playhouse films.

The big buildup for SALLY MANSFIELD, of Rocky Jones, Space Ranger, started with being "Miss Emmy" for this week's Academy of TV Arts and Sciences Annual Emmy Awards, or would you rather be BILL CULLEN? He's now doing I've Got a Secret in New York Wednesdays, flies to Hollywood to do Place the Face Thursdays, flies right back to New York again to do the "Walk a Mile" radio show Saturdays. And this goes on every week. He's replacing JACK BAILEY on Place the Face, BAILEY to go into a new TV version of "Truth or Consequences" for RALPH EDWARDS -- who owns both.

A survey of "influential groups" reports that TV commercials "infuriate, bore, irritate, deceive the public and destroy their own value." They also do one other little thing -- they foot the bills for your free TV . . . Keep an eye on ANN SOTHERN's Private Secretary. The show is building like compound interest.

Humility Pays for Red Buttons

A Little, Unpretentious Guy Finds Himself In TV's Top 10

HUMILITY is a word that has been kicked around of late in the entertainment business, but it isn't a new word to Red Buttons. Red, now riding high as the star of his own CBS show, has made humility his watchword ever since he first broke into show business.

Red was so darned lovable, that given the chance, he worked himself right into the hallowed orbit of the Top Ten of TV. A year and a half ago, he was new in the stratosphere and he was overly conscious of his background — New York's tough, lower East Side, burlesque, the Borsch circuit; overly conscious of his limited education—high school. And although he was ham enough to want the center of attraction on stage, he was self-conscious about the inner man.

The Buttons at home: Red and Helayne usually sit around and talk family talk.

A Little Guy Loaded

To most people though, he was a sweet little guy loaded with a certain kind of talent and no vast audience to appreciate him.

Today, he is in everybody's living room, and he's weighted down by the enormity of it all. Where he once clammed up, ("Don't try to dig too deep, I'm just a little guy trying to do a job.") he now talks easily: "I'm not living for myself anymore. I've had to adopt a one-world policy. I'm a three million-dollar-a-year enterprise with 60 to 70 people directly depending upon me for their jobs."

In the tedious process of becoming a big man, Red developed his greatest selling point, the ability to ingratiate his boyish charm upon viewers. The executive producer of his show, Marlo Lewis, has said repeatedly, "Red's face is his fortune. He's popular because he's such a lovable boy to have around the house."

While not exactly a boy, (Red is 35) he is normally likable and he became more so. On his shows last year, he played roles that would build this portion of his personality. Some were carry-overs from his club days. He was in turn the tender but dopey husband; the shy, bewildered boy friend; the slap-happy but appealing fighter Rocky; the impish Kupke (stocking cap) Kid.

About his charm, Red says, "I didn't start out to be anything but me. A guy doesn't say to himself, 'For the next half hour I'm going to be humble,' and then the rest of the week be a nothing. I deal in emotions—love, hate, fear, rejection. If what I do turns out for some people to be lovable, fine. But that was the bonus, not the intent."

At the end of Red's first year of TV, he turned down motion picture offers and took the long trek out to Las Vegas. It wasn't for the money. His TV earnings reportedly were around $125,000; the "Ho-Ho" song brought another $25,000. The son of an immigrant hat blocker hadn't had time to spend it all. Red could only be out to show his wares, prove his talent to the real live paying customers in the night club capital.

Strange Things Are Happening

Last November, the little boy errant's dreams of glory came true. Red returned in triumph to the school he put on the map—Evander Childs High School in the Bronx. As guest of honor at alumni festivities, he visited old haunts and former teachers. "If Red had gotten a swelled head, he would have talked down to his teachers," producer Leo Morgan said. "Not Red. When they told him how proud they were of him, Red attributed all his success to luck and the good graces of God."

His wife, Helayne is convinced that "Red isn't any different now—only a little more serious. Red has never needed people. He didn't before and doesn't now. He's just self-sufficient, and other people can't accept that."

Says confidant and adviser Marlo Lewis: "Red and Helayne are two of the most average people you've ever met. At home, nothing ever happens. They sit around and talk family talk."

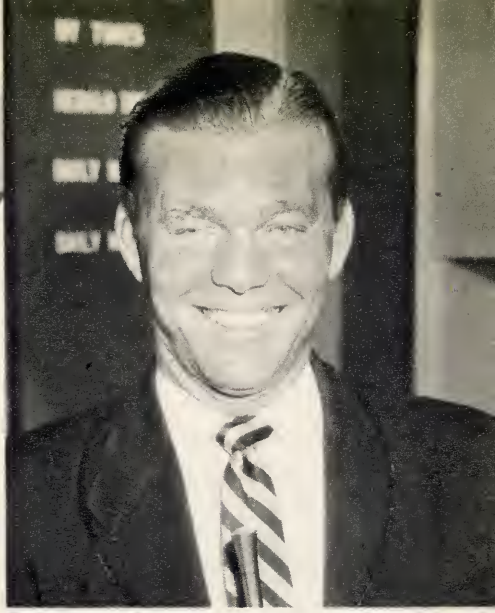
If getting there has been hard, staying there is the real test. Like most performers, Red doesn't see himself in perspective, but sometimes he will take criticism from an outsider. Bibi Osterwald, a singer who has been on his show a number of times, tells about Red rushing into rehearsal with a story about a taxi driver who wanted to know if Red were Red Buttons. When he proudly said, "Yes," the driver, with a cab driver's simplicity told him, "I saw your show last night. Boy, was that a louse." Now it's become a gag. Whenever something goes wrong, Red says, "Boy, was that a louse."

To avoid such shows, Red works at a nervous pitch. People who know him well say after a show, it takes him a half hour to dry off.

His wife says, "This is his personality. And he has to prove his success was no accident. Just as he had to learn that bigness has nothing whatever to do with height."

Not for him: Red finds himself unsuited to the royal robes of pomp and pretense.

IN THE CAST



Jack Lescoulie: doesn't seek stardom.

JACK LESCOULIE, chief interference runner (in charge of remote pick-ups, sports and announcing) for Dave Garroway, likes his job as well as the next man, but is a little leery of its outcome. "I could get killed doing this show," he says.

Though not yet seriously wounded, he once wrestled with a walrus for Garroway's fans. "I wanted to make the interview memorable so I walked into the walrus' cage. Wrestling was the walrus' idea—not mine."

In the line of duty, Lescoulie has also worked out with the N.Y. Giants football team, skied down New York streets in the first snow flurry, and on skates, covered the opening of an ice skating rink. "I had never skied or skated before. I hear I was very funny.

"I held my own just once," Jack says. "As a gag, I had to fence with one of the world's fencing masters. I never told anyone, but at college (U.S.C.) I held the title of fencing champ of California."

Lescoulie's greatest asset on the Garroway or any other show (he also introduces Jackie Gleason and has just been signed to announce the commercial on the Buick-Berle shows) is his cheerfulness, a feat for anyone at 7 a.m., a miracle at 4:00. Garroway calls him "The Vitamin Boy" because he rises daily at 4:00 and shines at 5:00—rehearsal hour.

Born into show business and in vaudeville at seven, Jack has been trombone player, singer, Broadway actor, radio announcer and a combat reporter for the Air Force.

Lescoulie sometimes pinch hits for Garroway, the man he admires most but doesn't envy. "My chief ambition is to be the world's greatest helper. I don't want to devote my life to this business and I don't want a star's responsibilities."

An announcer friend, Harry Von Zell, once drove Jack past Red Skelton's house. According to Jack, the house is very beautiful, very large and in it, lives a harried man. Von Zell then pointed out Don Wilson's house. This one is almost as large, almost as beautiful and Wilson, almost as rich, hasn't a worry in the world. "A good announcer doesn't have to watch his ratings or worry about a sponsor. And he can always get another job," Jack says.

"Of course, if a show were forced upon me, I'd hate to say 'no.'"

THE LUCY-DESI MOVIE

LUCILLE BALL, shown in the wedding scene from M-G-M's "The Long, Long Trailer," and Desi Arnaz are TV's first situation comedy stars to essay a full length movie.

Lucy's first step was to talk Desi into the idea of honeymooning in a trailer.

They looked over the folder and picked out the one they wanted, a real beauty.

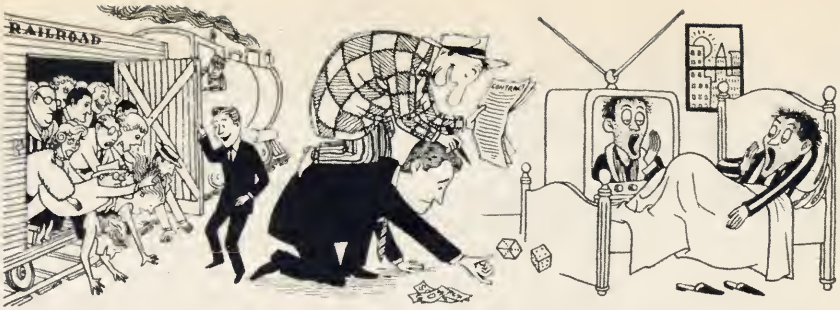
Naturally, they needed an auto to pull

Everything was fine when they set out in their mansion on wheels, but it wasn't long until they found out that a 40-foot trailer requires very special driving skill.

They found a delightful trailer camp and a warm welcome from Ed Dearing.

Desi knocked down a porch and, below, found trailer overrun with visitors.

the trailer and Lucy selected this one.



How To Be Right AND Be President

Persistent Pat Weaver Believes In Stars, Brains And Color For TV

SYLVESTER L. (Pat) WEAVER, Jr., who looks better in color than in black and white, thanks to a shock of red hair and an almost perpetually sun-burned face, is the master-mind at the helm of NBC-TV.

They tell of the time back in 1950 when Pat Weaver was buying up stars by the carload lot: Sid Caesar, Eddie Cantor, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, Fred Allen, Danny Thomas, Kate Smith, to name a few. But no matter how he tried, he couldn't lure Jimmy Durante into the fold.

Jimmy had not reckoned with Pat Weaver. Without tipping off any of his associates, Weaver boarded a plane for Las Vegas, where Durante was staying with his manager, the late Lou Clayton. For four days, the NBC executive lived with Clayton and Durante. He swam with them, rolled dice with them, joined them at night clubs and in their private suites. Durante was adamant until the last night—at the gaming tables Weaver rolled seven successive "sevens," on which Durante made $5,000. That did it. Durante signed the next day.

The shows that Weaver has built include Your Show of Shows; The Comedy Hour; the All Star Review; the Kate Smith Hour, first big afternoon TV show; Broadway Openhouse, which pioneered late-night TV and made stars of Jerry Lester and Dagmar; and Today, which opened up early-morning network TV.

Weaver worked out the idea of rotating stars so they would not have to appear every week and the idea of splitting up the cost of bigtime TV hours among several advertisers. The list of stars Weaver signed up with NBC gold is a roll-call of top-line entertainers in America. Many of them aren't around any more: Jack Carter, for one; Ed Wynn, for another; Jack Carson, for a third; Olsen and Johnson, for a few more. Weaver has also been accused of nepotism in launching a summer show a few years back starring his brother, Doodles. The show laid an egg.

Weaver's first attempts with Fred Allen, whose radio show Town Hall Tonight he produced in the 1930's, also turned sour. But Weaver is the idea man; he leaves to others the problems of working out the details. He once wrote a single-spaced, three-page memorandum on his reasons for starting Today, which unfortunately got into the hands of the press and made him an easy target for the critics. Weaver's grandiose concepts didn't match the reality of the show. But Today accomplished at least the strategic end he wanted—it kicked off early-morning network TV.

Weaver, who claims he reads Herodotus, a Greek historian, in bed, also took a licking in the public press with an idea called "Operation Frontal Lobes," a presumptuous high-brow title for popularizing culture. The title was quickly abandoned, but the quietly-promulgated "Wise Men" series has presented Bertrand Russell, Robert Frost, Wanda Landowska, and others, with rare taste and understanding. Weaver also presided over the launching of Victory at Sea, which has won every major award in the book.

Veteran of Show Business

Forty-five years old, six foot three and freckled-faced, Weaver was born in Los Angeles a few blocks away from the movie lots. Virtually ever since, he has been close to show business except for his formal education, which includes graduating with a Phi Beta Kappa key from Dartmouth College, where he majored in classical civilizations.

After a brief fling inspecting classical ruins in Europe, he plunged into radio as a writer and producer. His career was, as they say, "meteoric," and at the age of 30 he had become advertising manager for Lucky Strike cigarets. He traveled widely with the Jack Benny show, which he produced along with many of the other top radio programs of the 1930's. Once, when Don Wilson became ill five minutes before air time, Weaver grabbed the script and went on as Benny's announcer.

For Thinking—$90,000

For a while last year, NBC put the $90,000 executive to pasture to ruminate about television. He was upped from vice president in charge of television to vice chairman of the board—and left to think. It didn't last long. When color became a predominant issue, Weaver was called back into the game to call the chromatic signals. Within a few months, he was also back as vice president in charge of television operations. A short time later he was president of the network.

Weaver has a "rapport" with entertainers that only an ex-writer, director, and producer could have. Of all NBC top brass, he's the only one who dares to ad lib with the top comedians. Someone once asked him how he got along with the fabulous tobacco tycoon, George Washington Hill. Weaver stuffed his arm up his sleeve and waved the empty flap: "I've had him eating out of my hand."

Bil Baird, the near-genius whose puppet creations have been seen on Your Show of Shows, will soon display his talents (with his wife, Cora) over CBS-TV's new early-morning show. Bil, whose name is properly William, explains why he dropped an "l" this way: "During the depression, I was economizing. I was also allergic to bills. The truth is that people never pronounced that 'l' anyway."

TV's Week: Sharp-eyed Lucille Ball helped nab a backstage Hollywood burglar. Watch for a duplication of the incident in a future script for her show.

New York's Welfare Department ruled that Strike It Rich, which it interpreted as a welfare agency, needs a license to solicit funds. Walt Framer, the show's producer, declared his intention to continue telecasting without the permit until stopped by court action.

TV Sports GUIDE

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12

BOXING: Joey Giambra vs. Italo Scortichini, middleweights, 10 rounds, 10 P.M. (4) (8).

JIMMY POWERS RATES THE BOXERS:

Giambra is rated 6th. Fights: 40. Won: 37. Lost: 3. K.O.'s: 20.

Scortichini is unrated. Fights: 41. Won: 31. Lost: 7. Drew: 3. K.O.'s: 9.

Giambra, new Buffalo idol, when first seen on the Friday night presentation stopped Jimmy Herring. In this short contest he was extended by Herring's aggressive style. Against the Italian invader, Giambra will have a strong, weaving, lighter foe, who recently held Carmen Basilio even in 10 rounds. His left jabs must work overtime to keep off the aggressive Italo, but you can be sure Giambra will be the winner at the end.

WRESTLING: Laurel Gardens, 9 P.M. (13).

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13

BASKETBALL: Professional: Syracuse Nationals vs. Rochester Royals, 3 P.M. (5) (8) (43).

N.Y. Knickerbockers vs. Ft. Wayne Pistons 9 P.M. (11).

College: Muhlenberg vs. Seton Hall, 8:45 P.M. (13).

BOXING: Garth Panter vs. Jesse Turner, middleweights, 10 rounds, 9 P.M. (7) (43).

JIMMY POWERS RATES THE BOXERS:

Panter is rated 14th. Fights: 67. Won: 52. Lost: 13. Drew: 2. K.O.'s: 36.

Turner is rated 12th. Fights: 50. Won: 34. Lost: 11. Drew: 5. K.O.'s: 19.

Panter, the local boy in this contest, will be all out to show his Utah neighbors that he is a far better fighter than his last showing against Joey Giardello. I pick Panter.

WRESTLING: Lou Thesz vs. Mr. Moto, 4 P.M. (2). From Chicago, 10:30 P.M. (5), 11:00 P.M. (8).

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 14

BOWLING: All-Star League, 10 P.M. (13).

ROLLER DERBY: Brooklyn Red Devils vs. New York Chiefs, 4 P.M. (7).

WRESTLING: Women, 7 P.M. (13).

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 15

BASKETBALL: College: Loyola of Chicago vs. Seton Hall, 8:45 P.M. (13).

BOXING: Preliminaries, 9 P.M. (5).

Main Bout 10 P.M. (5), Floyd Patterson vs. Yvon Durelle, lightheavyweights, 8 rounds.

JIMMY POWERS RATES THE BOXERS:

Patterson is rated 9th. Fights: 9. Won: 9. K.O.'s: 7.

Durelle is unrated. Fights: 25. Won: 20. Lost: 5. K.O.'s: 9.

Floyd looked real champion material on December 14th, when he stopped Dick Wagner in five. I like Patterson. A victory here could pave the way for an early meeting with the ex-champion of the class, Joey Maxim.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 16

BASKETBALL: Pro: NY Knickerbockers vs. Boston Celtics, 9 P.M. (11).

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 17

BOXING: Clarence Henry vs. Jimmy Slade, heavyweights, 10 rounds. 10 P.M. (2) (8).

JIMMY POWERS RATES THE BOXERS:

Slade is rated 7th in the lightheavyweight class. Fights: 31. Won: 18. Lost: 9. Drew: 4. K.O.'s: 4.

Henry is rated 7th in the heavyweight class. Fights: 40. Won: 35. Lost: 4. Drew: 1. K.O.'s: 19.

Clarence is a hard-punching powerhouse who should prove too powerful for the awkward Slade. Henry at one time was being picked for a top spot. I pick Henry, possibly by a knockout.

HOCKEY: N.Y. Rangers vs. Boston Bruins, 9 P.M. (11).

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18

BASKETBALL: Carroll vs. Iona, 9 P.M. (11).

BOXING: Laurel Garden, 8:45 P.M. (13).

BUICK-BERLE SHOW

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

GEORGE JESSEL once said that the only permanent thing in show business is change. The Milton Berle Show is offered as proof.

Berle was Mr. Television himself as far back as 1948. In those early days he had only to dress up in women's clothes or black out his front teeth or throw a pie in somebody's face to stop the wheels of commerce from 8 P.M. to 9 P.M. of a Tuesday.

What Berle forgot to do was change. New shows and new faces were coming along in droves, but Berle ignored the warning signals. Not until he had slipped to the point of near-disaster a year and a half ago could he be prevailed upon to mend his ways. The solution was simplicity itself: they brought in writer Goodman Ace.

Since Ace's advent, the Berle show has changed completely and improved enormously. The dog-eared variety acts have all but disappeared. A concrete story line has been added. Two new characters, Arnold Stang as the stagehand and Ruth Gilbert as Max, Berle's secretary, have brought both depth and new humor to the proceedings.

Such guest star powerhouses as Tallulah Bankhead, Frank Sinatra, Jack Webb, Martha Raye, Peter Lawford, Carol Channing and Mickey Spillane have been written solidly into the scripts. And Berle himself has been toned down considerably. The change has done him a world of good.

SEATTLE prison installs coin-box TV sets in cells. This must be what they mean by a captive audience.

The unluckiest prisoner is the guy who sent in box tops and won an all-expense trip to Mexico.

One prisoner is all set because he has a 20-year sentence and his quarters full of quarters. He's the one fellow who can see himself on This Is Your Life while watching Dragnet. He watched one comic on TV and said: "And for what I did, they gave me 20 years."

His mistake was in trying to Strike It Rich at four o'clock in the morning.

Then there's the old-time safecracker who sandpapers his fingertips before turning the dials. The only thing that annoys him is announcers who say: "We'll be back in a minute. Don't go away now."

One pickpocket is so clever, he puts quarters in the slot and then picks them out again.

This boy even picked Jack Benny's pocket, right off the screen. All he got was a handful of candy mints, painted to look like dimes.

Breath Takes A Holiday

THERE is a feeling here, maybe or maybe not shared by the clients, that too many of the essays in this space have been marked by a note of—well, churlishness. This is a disturbing thought, because it suggests that there are flaws in the disposition of the writer. In fact, the fault almost certainly lies in this quarter, for it does not seem reasonable that a medium as popular as television could really be as objectionable as it often seems to me.

This, then, is an exercise in soul-searching. A nced is felt to find some aspect of sports-on-television which may be applauded without reservation. Only thus may a curmudgeon find salvation.

By rare good fortune, just such an opportunity offers itself. Surely everyone who owns a television set must have seen and/or heard Jimmy Powers many times. This is inevitable, unless there are people who can afford to buy a set for the sheer pleasure of tuning everything out.

Well, now for the applause. A great many people whose judgment I respect have declared a great many times in my hearing that in their opinion Jimmy Powers is the best commentator on fights that television has presented up to now.

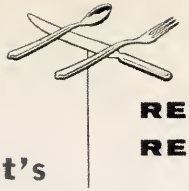
Invariably, the reason given for this opinion is the same: "He never says anything. He has the sense to kcep his mouth shut and let you watch the fight."

There is a text for a sermon there, if only we could find it. Maybe the point is that when a viewer tunes in a sports event he does so because he wants to see the event, rather than to hear a golden voice describing it.

Not long ago there was a fight card in some town where the commentator —somebody else, not Powers—babbled and chattered and gaggled interminably, with the camera on him, of course. At long last, his audience heard him say, "Okay, Joe, any time you're ready." And with that the ring announcer, who had been waiting obsequiously, introduced the fighters and the bout went on.

Powers does not make this mistake. He specializes in the deathlike hush. Once in a while he'll say "Martinez in the black trunks, Casillo in the white." Thoughtfully, he'll add, "One minute to go in round three." That's about all, expect that between rounds when there's no commercial he may read off a list of red-headed, left-handed, gray-eyed fighters who have appeared in the Garden since 1925.

It is cnormously restful. Of course, if the man who talks least is the best commentator, then it follows logically that the perfect commentator would be either a deaf mute or a dead man. But let's reason no further on that line. That way lies chaos.



REGIONAL RECIPES:

In Cleveland, It's Sister Lettie's Buttermilk Biscuits

CLEVELAND is steeped in the history and culture of the Shakers and their fine food.

So the choice of regional recipes for Ethel Jackson, slim, blonde cooking expert on The Women's Window, WEWS, was not hard: Sister Lettie's Buttermilk Biscuits, an authentic recipe of the Shakers, a religious society which in 1820 founded a colony east of downtown Cleveland where now is located one of the city's loveliest suburbs, Shaker Heights.

Ethel Jackson: WEWS food authority at work on another dish. This one boasts sweet potatoes, apples and maple syrup.

Ethel thinks the Shaker recipe is as interesting in background as it is in taste. The Shakers were—are would be more accurate; a handful still exist—communal living people who banned smoking, drinking, marriage and, at one time, meat. They were people dedicated to "consecrated labor." The sect was founded by a woman, Ann Lee. And "Mother Ann" insisted that her feminine followers be top-notch homemakers. In time, the Shaker women became known as excellent cooks.

Shaker communities numbered from 200 to 600 souls, so the women learned to work with vast amounts of food. Sister Lettie's recipe has been cut from its original proportions to smaller, workable amounts for today's average family. The reduced recipe has been tested and found just as good as the old.

SISTER LETTIE'S BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
3 tablespoons butter
¾ cup buttermilk

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in butter finely. Stir in buttermilk. Knead lightly. Roll or pat out about ¾ inch thick. Cut with small cutter. Bake in pre-heated very hot oven (450°) for 12 minutes or until golden-brown.

It's Tallulah, Darlings

THE THEATER'S only living legend, Tallulah Bankhead, greeted us at the door shivering in lounging pajamas and a cigaret, both of which she sported during the whole fantastic day of the interview. Secluded in "Windows," a beautiful old rambling house 60 miles from New York, at the end of a climbing cow path ten miles from where the macadam ends, overlooking God's green acres and a swimming pool, lives the woman extraordinaire, who more than anything else in the world, loathes being alone.

Tallulah clowns with Berle and enjoys TV but balks at doing regular job on own panel show.

No isolationist, politically or socially, she houses three dogs, a cat, a Myna bird, a chauffeur, a cook, her secretary, Edie Smith, any number of neuroses, and on weekends, any variety of high- and low-brows.

The idyllic "Windows" erupts spasmodically, along with Tallulah. She'd stay there forever, never working, "if the wolf and Bureau of Internal Revenue would stay away from my door."

Southern Ham

Admittedly lazy and a ham, she comes out of hibernation "only for money, dahling," including the Jimmy Durante show date and U.S. Steel Hour's "Hedda Gabler." She has other offers. "I hate to say whose. If I turn anyone down I give the man a black eye and I don't want to give those dahling Goodson-Todman boys a black eye. But I'm advised that panel shows are on their way out." Bill Todman, who hasn't heard the news about panel shows, says, "We have an audience participation show in the works, tailor-made for Tallu." And he's convinced she's convinced.

She's thinking more seriously about a situation comedy, a Fred Coe offspring. But with the wolf still at a distance, she reads through the night and sleeps through the day. Since she reads prone, with Doloras, a Maltese poodle, slung somehow around the top of her head, like a halo, she can't abide heavy books. "I'll wager I'm the only person who ever read 'Gone With the Wind' at one session," she claims. "But it weighed so much, I ripped it in half. Read first one part, then the other—like that," she tore an imaginary book in two.

Not an outdoor girl, she rarely rises before three, ventures into the open only in summer. "Dahling, I'm so unathletic, I've got a 60 foot pool that I've never seen the other end of."

Tallulah is a determined Giant rooter. As a born Confederate, she has a distaste for all things Yankee, from baseball to pot roast.

She rarely remembers names, although she's remarkably adroit at anything concerning Tallulah. "I haven't been to the theater in seven years and a movie in 10. At the ball park, I blow my gasket if the Giants win, and I blow it if they lose. Either way I come home dead—a wreck."

London Belle

For all who weren't around for Tallulah's first triumph 30 years ago, she was the belle of London at 21. She was born the second daughter of the great beauty, Adelaide, and the ambitious young lawyer, Will Bankhead, who was to become a Congressman and later, Speaker of the House. When Tallulah returned after her storming of the Isles, she was tagged "a second Marlene Dietrich."

Back on Broadway, she appeared in a series of dismal flops, mediocre flops, and three or four plays that rated no score at all. She finally hit her stride as the predatory Regina Giddens in Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," again as Sabina in Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," and came off with the New York film critics award for her portrayal of a newspaper woman in the Hitchcock film, "Lifeboat."

Glamorous, Unpredictable

By the time she stampeded into radio via NBC's "The Big Show" she had worked up a reputation for being "fabulous, incredible, tempestuous, a character," which she resents violently.

She talks endlessly, in paragraphs rather than sentences. She shows a distinct preference for prancing over walking. And she can throw a tantrum at the block of most any whim. This particular talent was perfected at the age of five when Daddy took sister (Eugenia) off on a picnic and left Tallulah home. Tallu flung herself on the floor, "got purple in the face and screamed blue murder." Grandmother squelched both the tantrum and the young Bankhead with a bucket of cold water.

Her voice is her trademark, and although she sings in a virtual bass, she claims perfect pitch. "The gags about my voice didn't just happen," she confided. "I haven't always sounded like the low end of a foghorn. But by the time I was six, I had the croup, whooping cough, pneumonia, mumps, tonsillitis, measles; everything settled right here in my chest." She pounded, proving its whereabouts.

"I figured Durante has his nose, Benny has his miserliness, I would have my voice. But Bob Hope clinched it. He introduced me on 'The Big Show,' saying that I was going to sing, 'Give My Regards to Seventh Avenue.' I corrected him, 'You mean, Broadway, Bob.' He told me, 'Tallulah, you'll always be a block away.' "

During the tour of "Windows," so named because it has 75 of them, Tallulah pointed out her prized possessions, ranging from her Augustus John portrait, which she values at $100,000, to Precious, the puppet designed for her by Burr Tillstrom.

She displayed her Myna bird, Cleo, and asked it to repeat her name.

"Say Tallulah," said Tallulah.

"Birds can't talk," said Cleo.

Except Maybe Rosselini

At the door, Tallu charged, "I'll bet you're going home to write that I'm utterly mad, just like people expect me to be. It's that stupid typing." But though she defies being typed, and a trillion other natural laws, she conceded, "It's true. If it had been me who ran off with Rosselini, no one would have given it a thought."

—Katherine Pedell

She swaps gags with Bert Lahr on comedy show but does just as good a job in a dramatic role.

Television Valentines

I fought 12 years to get this way;
what's your excuse, dear Martha Raye?

Red Buttons to Gypsy Rose Lee
They're eying me, instead of you;
since I got out of Burly-Q.

Lucille Ball to Desi Arnaz
I send no hearts, but spades instead;
I'm signing nothing more that's red

THE RIGHT TELEVISION ANTENNA FOR

Answer To Poor Reception May Be On Your Rooftop

AWAY up on your roof, where most people pay little attention to it, rests what may well be the key to satisfactory televiewing—your antenna.

For most viewers it may come as a shock to learn that engineers contend these antennas—and they number more than 15,000,000 throughout the Nation—should not be lightly regarded. For example, Harold Harris, vice president of Channel Master Corp., one of the largest antenna producers, says that an average set with an excellent antenna will outperform a top set with a poor antenna.

So let's look into the subject.

Chief factor in the selection of an antenna is distance. Viewers living near the telecasting station are said to be in a "primary" area. Those in the suburbs are in a "secondary" area, while people living far out in the country are classified as "fringe" area video viewers. Each group needs a different type of antenna installation and producers have developed a variety of types to meet ordinary or special needs of all set-owners.

Other factors to consider are:

1. Type of terrain. The flatter the land, the farther a TV signal can travel.
2. The presence of tall buildings, hills, or other reflecting surfaces. These cause "ghosts" on the TV screen.
3. The number of television stations serving the area. These may be VHF, (Channels 2 through 13) or UHF (Channels 14 through 83.)

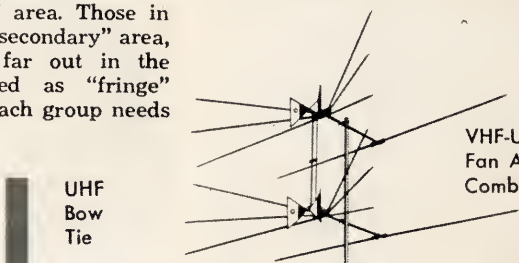
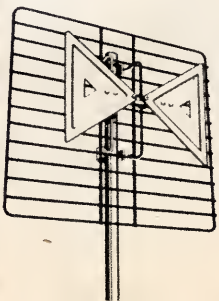
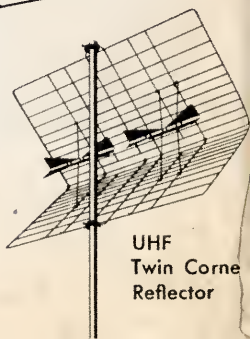
The function of an antenna is to pick the picture wave out of the air and feed it to the set. The antenna is an integral part of the television set itself. Electronic engineers have out-







Here are some of the various antennas available to television viewers. Each is designed to meet a specific need and to aid in overcoming reception difficulties due to distance or location. Right one can prove a boon.

YOU

lined a few of the unhappy results when an antenna does not do its job or a wrong antenna is selected.

"Snow": electronic noise within the TV set that usually shows up when only a weak signal can be received. All action seems to take place in the midst of an Alaskan blizzard. The more powerful the antenna, the more effectively it can reduce "snow" by bringing in a stronger signal. In fringe areas, this is a common problem.

"Ghosts": double or triple images occurring when the antenna picks up a signal directly from the transmitter, and a split second later, an identical signal of the image reflected off a building, hill or watertower in the general vicinity of the set.

The selection of a proper antenna can do much to reduce and even eliminate these troubles. Here are types to choose from:

VHF ANTENNAS for Channels 2-13

Tri-Pole Antenna: basically new kind; provides powerful reception.

Hi-Lo Antenna: moderate power, used only in strong signal areas.

Fan Type: all-channel antenna. There are more fan types installed throughout the country than any other.

Yagi: a single or multiple channel antenna for long distance reception.

UHF ANTENNAS for Channels 14-83

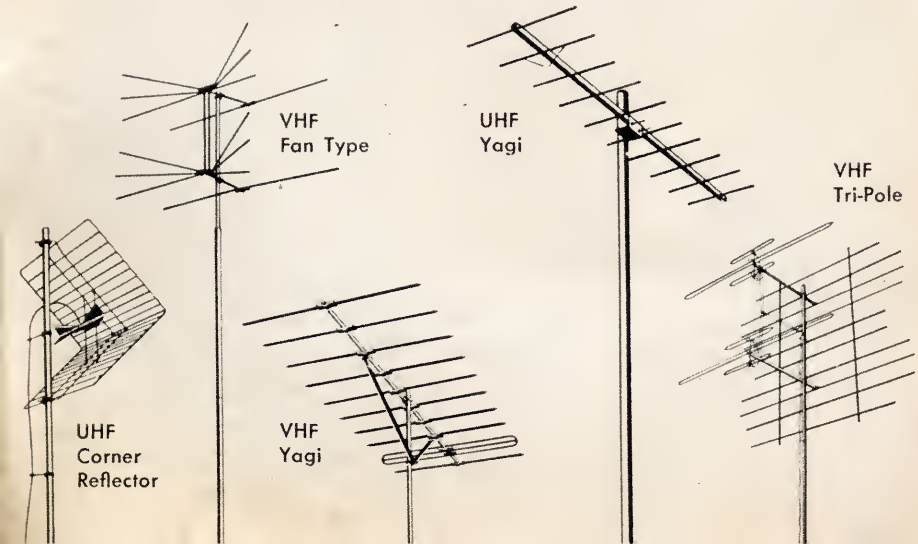
Bow-Tie: popular all-channel antenna.

Corner Reflector and Twin Corner Reflector: very powerful all channel fringe area antenna.

Yagi: powerful fringe antenna covering a limited number of channels.

VHF AND UHF COMBINATION for Channels 2-83

Fan and Bow Tie Combination: combination of the fan and bow tie built into a single antenna structure. Receives all channels.



As the owner of a TV set you're a twentieth-century "ALICE" but you have many LOOKING GLASSES.
